We are open and operational

Dear Customers and Partners,

The situation we face from coronavirus continues to change fast and still impacts all aspects of our everyday life. Whilst some of our markets remain in lockdown, many are now returning to a “more normal” environment.

Hepco’s sales phone lines are now open, and in addition to emailing [\[email protected\]](#), you can speak to our customer service team on +44 (0) 1884 257000 for our head office. Regional sales lines continue to remain open.

Our sales teams are available to discuss applications over the phone or zoom and are available for visits and have the required PPE to ensure the protection of our customers and sales teams.

We continue to implement preventative measures throughout our business allowing us to maintain production. We have good stock levels of raw materials and finished goods, ensuring we are in a strong position to meet customer demands. All office functions are operating with reasonably normal service, but with most people continuing to work from home.

In the meantime, we wish you and your family good health and we look forward to getting back to normal when the situation has eased. We will keep you updated of any changes.

Kind Regards,

Peter Fanshawe

HepcoMotion Managing Director
