We are open and operational

Dear Customers and Partners,

The situation we face from coronavirus continues to change and still impacts all aspects of our everyday life. Whilst some of our markets continue to operate in a close to normal way, many are now returning to a restricted environment under lockdowns.

Following the latest Government announcement about new national restrictions in England, we would like to confirm that HepcoMotion remains open and operational. As part of the critical national infrastructure, we have remained open throughout the pandemic, maintaining our production and supply to customers around the world with essential products required to keep the country operating and supporting vital sectors.

The safety of our employees is paramount and we are continuing to review and implement safety measures throughout our business to protect our employees. All office functions are operating with reasonably normal service, but with most people continuing to work from home. Our sales teams are available to discuss applications over the phone or via zoom and look forward to returning to sales visits in due course.

In the meantime, we wish you and your family good health and we look forward to getting back to normal when the situation has eased. We will keep you updated of any changes.

Kind Regards,

Peter Fanshawe

HepcoMotion Managing Director
